INTRODUCTION

In ancient Egypt lived highly advanced initiates in the knowledge of self and nature. Among these most powerful initiates were the Ka men, holders of secret knowledge allowing the development of the inner light of man. And within the Ka men brotherhood, there were 9 superior masters, themselves responsible for initiating the pharaoh. Thus the pharaoh was part of the brotherhood of ka men since he had been initiated by them; and he consulted them before making important decisions.

The Ka represents the inner energy that powers the human aura. It is the energy of magic that lies in man, in reality the Ka is animic light in man. Ka is a light that shines in initiates only since they are aware of its existence and activate it, yet ordinary men do not have ka, or it would be better to say that in the uninitiated the ka is asleep, it doesn't shine. In reality every normal man is born with a ka, but some - the small number - are linked to their ka, while others - the large number - are separated from it. This book reveals a part of the Egyptian magic unknown even by a good number of initiates of our era, since the ancient Egyptian magic is the greatest magic.
